

#DancerDose – Sean Dorsey

Our #DancerDose this week is not only a brilliant dancer, but an inspiration to the LGBTQIAP+ community.

Sean Dorsey is a San Francisco hall of fame dancer, choreographer, and writer whose non-profit is bringing light to a perspective not commonly seen.

A San Francisco Sensation

Dorsey's work has captured many audiences from San Francisco to New York. Not only has he won four Isadora Duncan Awards, but he was even named in Dance Magazine's "25 to Watch"! SF Weekly even named his dance company, Sean Dorsey Dance, as San Francisco's Best Dance Company! Dorsey is a clear sensation who has created his own unique style through a fusion dance of storytelling and theatre.

The Nation's First Acclaimed Transgender Modern Dance Choreographer

Dorsey expresses his style of dance as powerful explorations of the human experience. His works are a fusion of full-throttle dance, exquisite partnering, intimate storytelling, and theatre.

His dances provide a window into transgender and queer experiences. As a transgender himself, he founded Fresh Meat Productions, the nation's first transgender arts non-profit. With this organization, he creates, presents and tours transgender arts programs year-round.

Fresh Meat Productions

Dorsey found Fresh Meat Productions on the belief that art is a powerful tool for social change and building community. They invest in artists who are trans and queer to inspire change and promote transgender expression and visibility. Fresh Meat Productions' recently produced Sean Dorsey Dance's most recent piece Boys In Trouble, a piece that unpacks masculinity with unflinching honesty – from unapologetically trans and queer perspectives.

Juna Shai is a writer for StarQuest. She's from Tokyo, and loves coffee, coffee, theatre, and coffee!